Lord Kitchener's Legacy

The Lost Treasure of H.M.S. Hampshire

Lord Horatio Kitchener was a great British military leader who appeared on the most famous British army recruitment poster ever produced. He also served as secretary of state for war during the first several years of World War I.

In 1916 Kitchener boarded the H.M.S. Hampshire to journey to Russia and persuade Czar Nicholas II to maintain his country's attack on the Germans. According to legend, the Hampshire was loaded with $10 million (£6 million) worth of gold as a temporary loan to the Russian government. Unfortunately the gold never made it to Russia. The Hampshire struck a German mine off the Orkneys on 5 June, 1916 and sank within minutes. Kitchener, along with all but twelve of the sailors on board, went down with the ship.

What happened to the gold? The Admiralty swears that there was never gold aboard the Hampshire, but still the rumours continue. In 1933 a locksmith named Charles Courtney made 27 trips down to the wrecked ship and claims to have removed £60,000 worth of gold from one of six massive safes on board the ship. His treasure hunt was cut short when strong currents killed two members of his team. He says that there are still five safes full of gold waiting to be found somewhere on the ship.

Was the gold ever really on the ship? In a recent dive down to the shipwreck, our divers brought back a small chest from Lord Kitchener's room. Inside this chest we found a note addressed to the Czar with a series of clues about the location of the missing gold. The answers to these clues are located in and around St. James' Park and the City of Westminster. If you can solve all of the clues, perhaps we will be able to finally learn where the lost gold is hidden!

What to Do

Look at the maps on the following page 3 & 4 and choose one of the paths of clues:

1. Victoria Zone
2. Horse Guards Parade Zone
3. Whitehall Zone

As you follow your chosen path look for the answers to the clues at the locations marked on the map. As you solve each clue, mark the answer off on the answer sheet found on page 5. To do this you will need to write the number of each clue in the box next to its correct answer on the sheet.

When you have answered all the clues, you will discover that there are 4 empty boxes left, you are now closer to cracking the code.

Finally, turn to the table on page 6 and use the table to find the four numbers that will crack the code to the safe. Find the numbers that match the four letters you have left on page 5. Once you have the numbers, write them in the boxes. Add these numbers together and whichever team crack the code first are the winners!
